Jurors' Statements

Linda Lehman

As both an artist and an educator for over thirty-five years I have found great joy, satisfaction, and growth in the process of creating. Whether creating art or creating lessons that challenge students, it is the process that engages us. This creative process involves our hands, our minds and our hearts. It enriches our thinking, stretches us, and rewards us with art and ideas like no others.

As I considered the hundreds and hundreds of works of art entered in this show, I was struck, not only by the work before me, but with the realization of the hours of time spent by teachers and students engaged in the process of creating. In order to be truly creative, individuals need to push beyond what they are comfortable with; to grow and to be courageous. I feel this show is representative of those teachers and students that challenged themselves, that invested extensive time and skill, and were courageous in the process of creating their art.

I commend all the students (and the teachers) that entered this show and encourage them all to continue to engage in the creative process. The process of choosing was a difficult one and regardless of the difficulty, I feel honored to have been a part of it. I was impressed with the creativity and craftsmanship of all the promising young artists and feel this show reflects the rich talent that exists in our high schools today.

*Linda L. Lehman is Visiting Assistant to the Director of the Center for Teacher Education,
Ohio Northern University*

Jaye Bumbaugh

Thank you for the privilege of judging the ArtSpace Kewpee Exhibition. I take the responsibility very seriously. In my many years as an art instructor at many levels: elementary, junior high, high school, and at the college level at Bluffton University, I have seen a lot of art. Maybe more importantly, as a working artist -- working in all media -- like many of you, I put no boundaries on my imagination. I give it lots of room. Imagination has preceded knowledge in just about everything and is the extraordinary ingredient in solving artist problems.

Words never quite get to the truth; making art can, perhaps, for all of us artists, do that. In a sort of way, this is our show. We, the judges, made the decisions to include works of art that make up the Exhibition. Having entered many shows myself, I know the sting of rejection -- and also winning awards. Keep being a hopeful artist and keep making art!

In order to create something that didn't exist before -- you have to go into some zone where dreams and reality are equally available, and where time doesn't exist. That's tough in this world, isn't it? Our perspective always shifts as we age -- so the art that we create is a part of that shift. With age, my perspective as a juror of art, I'm sure, is also affected by that shift.

Jaye Bumbaugh is Professor of Art Emeritus at Bluffton University.

ArtSpace / Lima

The logo for ArtSpace Lima features the word "Art" in a bold, purple, cursive font. A thick, purple brushstroke extends from the bottom of "Art" across the page. A black pen nib is positioned at the end of this stroke, pointing upwards and to the right. The words "Space" and "Lima" are written in a clean, black, sans-serif font to the right of the brushstroke. A small red musical note is placed above the letter "i" in "Lima".
